

The 20x42B CMS was designed from inception to be a lightweight, easily transportable anti-material rifle. A flat trajectory ensures target engagement not easily achievable with a LV/MV 40mm grenade launcher. The compact size of the weapon system makes it ideal for parachute deployments into hostile territories, yet capable of eliminating hard targets such as communication towers, missile emplacements, as well as armoured vehicles. The 20x42mm ammunition, although being sub-sonic, has an effective range of 1000m. It is capable of delivering a devastating payload due to the variety of ammunition available, from PRAC rounds all the way to the highly specialised SAPHEI version.
